ADMINISTRATIVE THEORY & PRAXIS

Administrative Theory & Praxis (ATP) is a quarterly journal of dialogue in public administration theory. It is the journal of the Public Administration Theory Network and its purpose is to advance knowledge and stimulate new thought in public administration. The journal is open to many perspectives that contribute to public administration, for example political and social theory, philosophy and ethics, theory of institutions and organizations, psychological and phenomenological approaches, international-comparative theory, and critical, feminist, discourse, and postmodern theory. Readers are encouraged to communicate with the editors about possible papers, symposia, book reviews, or commentary. ATP evolved from the Network's original informal publication called Dialogue. ATP is published with the support and assistance of the University of Nebraska at Omaha, College of Public Affairs and Community Service and the School of Public Administration.

ASIAN JOURNAL OF POLITICAL SCIENCE

Asian Journal of Political Science (AJPS) is an international refereed journal sponsored by Department of Political Science, National University of Singapore. It is a leading journal that comprehensively examines politics and governance in Asia. It publishes original articles in major subfields of political science, especially comparative politics, international relations, political theory and public administration, with specific reference to Asian regions and countries. AJPS aims to address some of the most current political, diplomatic, and administrative issues facing Asian countries, especially those in East Asia, South Asia, and Southeast Asia. The journal can be of great value to teachers, students, researchers, and experts dealing with these issues and regions.

CANADIAN PUBLIC ADMINISTRATION

Canadian Public Administration is the refereed scholarly publication of the Institute of Public Administration of Canada (IPAC). It covers executive, legislative, judicial and quasi-judicial functions at all three levels of Canadian government. Published quarterly, the journal focuses mainly on Canadian issues but also welcomes manuscripts which compare Canadian public sector institutions and practices with those in other countries or examine issues in other countries or international organizations which are of interest to the public administration community in Canada.

DAILY COMPILATION OF PRESIDENTIAL DOCUMENTS

COMPILATION OF PRESIDENTIAL DOCUMENTS

The Compilation of Presidential Documents collection consists of the Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents and the Daily Compilation of Presidential Documents which are the official publications of materials released by the White House Press Secretary. The Compilation of Presidential Documents is published by the Office of the Federal Register (OFR), National Archives and Records Administration (NARA).

Suggested Citation Form: Daily Comp. Pres. Docs., 2009 DCPD No. 00001, p.3.

The citation is to material published in the Daily Compilation of Presidential Documents in the year 2009, in the first document, on page three.

In conjunction with the change of administration in 2009, OFR and GPO are pleased to provide more timely access to Presidential Documents by making materials available in electronic format on a daily basis. The Digest of White House Announcements, Nominations Submitted to the Senate, Checklist of White House Press Releases, and Acts Approved by the President will continue to be made available electronically on a weekly basis. # GOVERNANCE

Governance provides a forum for the theoretical and practical discussion of executive politics, public policy, administration, and the organization of the state. Published in association with the International Political Science Association's Research Committee on the Structure & Organization of Government (SOG), it emphasizes peer-reviewed articles that take an international or comparative approach to public policy and administration.

Aims and Scope

Governance provides a forum for the theoretical and practical discussion of executive politics, public policy, administration, and the organization of the state. Published in association with International Political Science Association's Research Committee on the Structure & Organization of Government (SOG), it emphasizes peer-reviewed articles that take an international or comparative approach to public policy and administration. All papers, regardless of empirical focus, should have wider theoretical, comparative, or practical significance.

INTERNATIONAL JOURNAL OF SOCIAL QUALITY

The International Journal of Social Quality is a peer reviewed, scholarly journal which has a primary focus on the interpretation of social quality through a wide range of disciplines, including social policy, economics, sociology, law and legal studies, philosophy, political science, geography, health sciences, and public administration. The journal seeks to create a forum for scientists, researchers, policy makers, and practitioners to discuss issues related to social quality based on qualitative and quantitative methods, normative debate and action-oriented case studies. The journal also discusses the social quality theory and approach in comparison with other approaches such as the quality of life, social capital, human security, the capability approach, and the human development or social harmony approach. Special attention is given to global sustainability challenges addressed from the social quality and human security approach.

OPTIMUM ONLINE

Optimum Online is the Web site edition of Optimum: The Journal of Public Sector Management. It is produced quarterly by The Summit Group, with assistance from the Centre on Governance, University of Ottawa. It continues the reputation set by the printed journal over the past 30 years. The online journal is a unique publication focusing on national and international issues at the managerial frontiers of public administration. It publishes both theoretical and applied materials that deal with current and future trends in the practice of public sector management. While its focus is on management and the public sector, it seeks original material of relevance from all sectors, including articles on private sector management and practice that apply to the public sector.

INTERNATIONAL JOURNAL OF LEADERSHIP IN PUBLIC SERVICES

This multi-disciplinary and evidence-based journal draws together the best international research and lived experiences of leadership to address current issues in the delivery of public services. It includes articles that add to understanding and implementation of leadership skills and knowledge to strengthen and improve public services. It includes quantitative and qualitative research, alongside illuminating narratives on the effective exercise of leadership. There is no existing journal that draws together the best of our international research and lived experience of leadership. This is the gap that The International Journal of Leadership in Public Services (IJLPS) aims to fill. It is vital for everyone involved in leadership and the design and delivery of public services. It is a hugely valuable source of information and intelligence for: chief executives, directors and managers; academics, universities, colleges and business schools; UK national health service; public and private health and social care organizations; education; local authorities; local and central government; social care providers and organizations; private sector providers and emerging public/private sector collaborations; voluntary and third sector and social enterprises; the police and fire services; service users and students.

INTERNATIONAL JOURNAL OF PUBLIC SECTOR MANAGEMENT

The International Journal of Public Sector Management focuses on the common issues which public sector managers, administrators and policy-makers face in a world of over-improving efficiency and effectiveness in situations of scarce resources and rising public expectations. Theory, concepts, methods and practical experience are all drawn upon. A double-blind review process ensures the journal's validity and relevance.

The journal derives its necessity from public demands for higher standards of service and commitment to improvement. These demands, balanced against shrinking budgets and staff levels, leave the public sector manager requiring all the information and ideas available, as well as experience, to motivate a demoralized workforce, satisfy government officials and win over an increasingly hostile public.

The journal's international content offers a genuinely valuable source for public sector managers in all areas looking for fresh ways of dealing with familiar problems. Distinguished contributors from all over the world present in-depth research and case histories which have tangible practical value and whose methodologies can be applied to solve or mitigate parallel situations.

TRANSFORMING GOVERNMENT: PEOPLE, PROCESS AND POLICY

Transforming Government publishes leading scholarly and practitioner research on the subject of transforming Government through its people, processes and policy. Unique and progressive in its approach, the journal seeks to recognize both the multidisciplinary and interdisciplinary perspectives of eGovernment, and welcomes both pure and applied research that impacts central and local Government. The journal is also interested in exploring how research carried out in the private sector can be applied to the public sector as a means of improving efficiency and effectiveness. Coverage is international and focused on original research in eGovernment ICT, service chain issues, public sector management, policy implications of developing an eGovernment environment, and organizational and human resource issues.

ADMINISTRATIVE SCIENCE QUARTERLY

Administrative Science Quarterly, owned and managed by the Samuel Curtis Johnson Graduate School of Management at Cornell University, has been at the cutting edge of organizational studies since the field began. This top-tier journal regularly publishes the best theoretical and empirical papers based on dissertations and on the evolving and new work of more established scholars, as well as interdisciplinary work in organizational theory, and informative book reviews. At the cutting edge since the field began, ASQ is the source of:

- The best theoretical and empirical work in organization studies
- Interdisciplinary work in organization theory
- A range of perspectives and styles
- Award-winning papers
- Informative book reviews

ADMINISTRATIVE THEORY & PRAXIS

Administrative Theory & Praxis (ATP) is a quarterly journal of dialogue in public administration theory. It is the journal of the Public Administration Theory Network and its purpose is to advance knowledge and stimulate new thought in public administration. The journal is open to many perspectives that contribute to public administration, for example political and social theory, philosophy and ethics, theory of institutions and organizations, psychological and phenomenological approaches, international-comparative theory, and critical, feminist, discourse, and postmodern theory. Readers are encouraged to communicate with the editors about possible papers, symposia, book reviews, or commentary. ATP evolved from the Network's original informal publication called Dialogue. ATP is published with the support and assistance of the University of Nebraska at Omaha, College of Public Affairs and Community Service and the School of Public Administration.

JOURNAL OF POLICY ANALYSIS AND MANAGEMENT

The JOURNAL OF POLICY ANALYSIS AND MANAGEMENT encompasses issues and practices in policy analysis and public management. Listed among the contributors are economists, public managers, and operations researchers. Featured regularly are book reviews and a department devoted to discussing ideas and issues of importance to practitioners, researchers, and academics.

JOURNAL OF PUBLIC ADMINISTRATION RESEARCH AND THEORY

The Journal of Public Administration Research and Theory serves as a bridge between public administration and public management scholarship on the one hand and public policy studies on the other. Its multi disciplinary aim is to advance the organizational, administrative, and policy sciences as they apply to government and governance. The journal is committed to diverse and rigorous scholarship and serves as an outlet for the best conceptual and theory-based empirical work in the field.

JOURNAL OF PUBLIC POLICY

Volume 25 Part 1 January-April 2005

Journal of Public Policy

OXFORD
UNIVERSITY PRESS

The Journal of Public Policy applies social science theories and concepts to significant political, economic and social issues and to the ways in which public policies are made. Its articles deal with topics of concern to public policy scholars in America, Europe, Japan and other advanced industrial nations. The Journal often publishes articles that cut across disciplines, such as environmental issues, international political economy, and politics regulation, and European Union processes. Its peer reviewers come from up to a dozen social science disciplines and countries across three continents, thus ensuring both analytic rigour and accuracy in reference to national and policy context.

POLICY SCIENCES

With an interdisciplinary and international focus, Policy Sciences encourages a diversity of perspectives. The editors especially welcome conceptual and empirical innovation, together with the potential richness and insight of comparative orientation.

The journal offers articles that examine the normative aspects of policy sciences; conceptual articles addressing concrete policy issues; articles on particularly controversial pieces of analysis; opposing perspectives, including critiques and rejoinders on articles already published, which open the journal to an exchange of views rather than restricting it to pure presentation; and special issues that analyze specific topics in depth.

Policy Sciences favors, but does not publish exclusively, works that either explicitly or implicitly utilize the policy sciences framework. The policy sciences are a distinctive subset within the policy movement in that they embrace the traditions of innovated and elaborated by Harold D. Lasswell and Myers S. McDougal. The policy sciences can be applied to articles with greater or lesser intensity to accommodate the focus of an author's work. At the minimum, this means taking a problem oriented, multi-method or contextual approach.

PUBLIC ADMINISTRATION REVIEW

Public Administration Review (PAR), a bi-monthly professional journal, has been the premier journal in the field of public administration research, theory, and practice for more than 60 years. It is published for the American Society for Public Administration and is the only journal in public administration that serves both academics and practitioners interested in the public sector and public sector management. Articles identify and analyze current trends, provide a factual basis for decision making, stimulate discussion, and make the leading literature in the field available in an easily accessible format. With articles on a wide range of topics and expert book reviews, PAR is exciting to read and an indispensable resource.

PUBLIC PERFORMANCE & MANAGEMENT REVIEW

Public Performance and Management Review focuses on the need for greater understanding of issues in public productivity and public management, including new ideas and proven techniques for measuring and enhancing productivity, case samples of successful management practices, and updates on the research and legislation that affect public management.

STATE & LOCAL GOVERNMENT REVIEW

State and Local Government Review (SLGR), peer-reviewed and published quarterly, provides a forum for the exchange of ideas among practitioners and academics that contributes to the knowledge and practice of state and local government politics, policy, and management. Of particular interest in SLGR are articles that focus on state and local governments and those that explore the intergovernmental dimensions of public-sector activity. Founded by the Carl Vinson Institute of Government of the University of Georgia, State and Local Government Review is the official journal of the Section on Intergovernmental Administration and Management (SIAM) of the American Society for Public Administration. Since 1968 the Review has provided a forum for the exchange of ideas among practitioners and academics that contributes to the knowledge and practice of state and local government politics, policy, and management. Like the Vinson Institute, SIAM has an interest not only in state and local government, but also in the effective interaction among public officials in a federal system. It seeks to foster the dissemination of information about research and experience that contributes to the understanding and improvement of the intergovernmental system.

ADMINISTRATIVE THEORY & PRAXIS

Administrative Theory & Praxis is a leading quarterly journal of critical, normative, and theoretical dialogue in public administration. As the journal of the Public Administration Theory Network, its purpose is to advance knowledge and stimulate new thought in public administration. ATP publishes innovative, rigorous scholarship that critically examines emerging and enduring topics in public administration theory; explores the intersection of public administration and broader social, economic, cultural, political, and historical issues; introduces to the field new theories, frameworks, and literatures that illuminate matters of public administration; develops challenging, thought-provoking normative, ethical, and philosophical arguments about the field; or otherwise seeks to explore and possibly transcend the limits of existing public administration theory and practice. ATP is open to a wide-range of research methodologies and approaches that evidence these sensibilities.

AGENDA : A JOURNAL OF POLICY ANALYSIS AND REFORM

Agenda is the quarterly journal of the College of Business and Economics, ANU. Launched in 1994, Agenda provides a forum for debate on public policy, mainly (but not exclusively) in Australia and New Zealand. It deals largely with economic issues but gives space to social and legal policy and also to the moral and philosophical foundations and implications of policy.

The Canadian Journal of Program Evaluation is published three times a year by the CES. It seeks to promote the theory and practice of program evaluation in Canada by publishing:

- Articles on all aspects of the theory and practice of evaluation, including methodology, evaluation standards, implementation of evaluations, reporting and use of studies, and the audit or metaevaluation of evaluation.
- Addressing Challenges in Evaluation Practice articles presenting real-life cases by evaluation practitioners.
- Evaluation Practice Notes on all aspects of evaluation practice with the goal of sharing practical knowledge, experiences and lessons learned of benefit to the evaluation community.
- Book Reviews that provide a critique of authored and edited volumes of interest and relevance to the evaluation field.

FISCAL STUDIES

Fiscal Studies is the journal of the Institute for Fiscal Studies. Written by leading academics, policymakers and practitioners, articles are presented in a clear and accessible format designed to appeal to a broad international readership. The contents of the journal reflect a broad interpretation of "fiscal studies". Articles are concerned with the whole spectrum of ways in which government action affects the economy, and usually have an applied microeconomics focus. Recent papers published have covered a broad range of topical issues of concern worldwide, including higher education finance, labor supply, poverty and inequality, and productivity. As well as more traditional applied economics papers, the journal also encourages the submission of timely papers that aim to provide considered responses to current policy debates. If accepted for publication, the editors will work quickly to publish time-sensitive papers in order to maximize their impact. Fiscal Studies is able to offer a very swift turnaround from acceptance to publication for all our articles, with authors usually experiencing a waiting time of only a few months.

The Journal is published by the SAI of the United States (Government Accountability Office - GAO).<sup>16</sup>

INTERNATIONAL JOURNAL OF LEADERSHIP IN PUBLIC SERVICES

The International Journal of Leadership in Public Services is vital for everyone involved in leadership and the design and delivery of public services. It is a hugely valuable source of information and intelligence for: chief executives, directors and managers; academics, universities, colleges and business schools; UK national health service; public and private health and social care organizations; education; local authorities; local and central government; social care providers and organizations; private sector providers and emerging public/private sector collaborations; voluntary and third sector and social enterprises; the police and fire services; service users and students.

This multi-disciplinary and evidence-based journal draws together the best international research and lived experiences of leadership to address current issues in the delivery of public services. It includes articles that add to understanding and implementation of leadership skills and knowledge to strengthen and improve public services. It includes quantitative and qualitative research, alongside illuminating narratives on the effective exercise of leadership.

INTERNATIONAL REVIEW OF PUBLIC ADMINISTRATION

Since the inception of International Review of Public Administration (IRPA) in 1996, the primary aim of IRPA has been to provide a comprehensive knowledge of public administration and policy based on high-quality academic research. The journal seeks to promote the dissemination and discussion of academic research and strives to provide a worldwide audience with the opportunity for communication and further understanding on issues of public administration and policy. IRPA covers a wide array of public administration field, including but not confined to:

- public management
- comparative and international administration
- governance and inter-sectoral relationships
- innovation and organizational learning in the public sector
- public budgeting and finance
- policy tools and evaluation
- various fields of public policy (social welfare policy, education policy, health policy, etc.)

JOURNAL OF COMPARATIVE POLICY ANALYSIS

The Journal of Comparative Policy Analysis: Research and Practice aims to stimulate the further intellectual development of comparative policy studies and the growth of an international community of scholars in the field. It gives priority to comparative studies that:

1. Contribute to comparative theory development;
2. Present theory-based empirical research;
3. Offer comparative evaluations of research methods;
4. Derive the practice implications of theory-based research;
5. Use conceptual heuristics to interpret practice;
6. Draw lessons based on circumstances in which compared policy related issues have in common certain manipulable policy, program or institutional variables.

Published five times per year, the JCPA is the only explicit journal of comparative policy analytical studies.

JOURNAL OF PUBLIC POLICY

The Journal of Public Policy applies social science theories and concepts to significant political, economic and social issues and to the ways in which public policies are made. Its articles deal with topics of concern to public policy scholars in America, Europe, Japan and other advanced industrial nations. The Journal often publishes articles that cut across disciplines, such as environmental issues, international political economy, and politics regulation, and European Union processes. Its peer reviewers come from up to a dozen social science disciplines and countries across three continents, thus ensuring both analytic rigor and accuracy in reference to national and policy context.

JOURNAL OF PUBLIC PROCUREMENT

The Journal of Public Procurement (JoPP) seeks to further the understanding of public procurement by exploring theories and practices of public procurement keyed to:

- Functional areas, including but not limited to procurement policy, procurement strategic planning and scheduling, contract formation, contract administration, evaluation, and procurement methods and techniques;
- Substantive areas such as government procurement laws and regulations, procurement economics and politics, and procurement ethics; and
- Topical issues such as e-Procurement, procurement transparency, and green procurement.
- JoPP covers not only procurement at the federal, state and local government levels in the United States and Canada, but also government procurement in developed and developing nations, including research studies, narrative essays, exemplar cases-both good or bad-from past experiences, commentaries, book reviews, and occasionally, reprints of informative published government reports.
